PRESS RELEASE

Some of Australia's greenest homes will open their doors to the public for the eleventh annual Sustainable House Day on Sunday 9 September 2012 - showcasing the country's most environmentally sustainable and innovative homes that invest in renewable energy, recycling and other practices designed to reduce their carbon footprint.

In Wagga Wagga, three homes will be open to the public from 10am to 4pm.

Local organizer, Mr. Stephen James of Climate Rescue of Wagga Inc. said that the homes open this year will showcase retrofit measures in a split level home, an energy efficient low-cost extension and a new home designed from the ground up for energy and water efficiency.

"If you're thinking about improving your home's energy or water efficiency, speaking to homeowners about their own experiences is a must. Seeing real sustainable projects in action, and learning what worked well and not so well, will help save you time and money." said Mr. James

Entry to the homes will be free.
